Marian Students Organize State-Wide Demonstration

Protesting the death of four Kent State students and U.S. involvement in Indo-China, a crowd of nearly 1000 students marched on the Federal Building last Thursday in downtown Indianapolis. The state-wide demonstration was organized and directed by Marian College students.

Michael Miller and John Mahoney called for the march following Monday's incident at Kent State.

The crowd initially gathered in Military Park where a two-hour rally was held. The rally featured such speakers as the Rev. Luther Hicks of Pride Incorporated, Black radical Snooky Hendricks, and Keith Parker, President of the Student Body at Indiana University. The group was most attentive, however, to Miss Jackie Stewart, a graduate student from Kent, who vividly described the action which led to the deaths of the four students.

Following the rally, the protestors were then led by the head marshal Rev. Hicks to the Federal Building. The parade route took the demonstrators over New York Street to Capitol, where they paused momentarily in front of the State House. The students then proceeded over Market Street and around the Circle where rush hour-traffic had already begun to clutter the streets and sidewalks. The parade then ended at the Federal Building where the crowd again gathered to hear speakers.

Congressional candidate Terry Straub addressed the group and cited the need for great change in America. His advice was that change could come most rapidly by working within the system.

The next speech was interrupted by the arrest of 5 IU students for unfurling VietCong flags. This action was in violation of city statute which prohibits the flying of any banner deemed 'inflammatory' by the police. Advised of this ordinance beforehand, the students doubted the constitutionality of such a law and decided to take issue.

The flag-bearing students were surrounded by parade marshals who interlocked arms to protect the group from hecklers. The police were allowed a small break in the formation, as the arrests were made peacefully.

The crowd dispersed shortly after a speech by Don Campbell, Captain of Defense for the Black Panther Party of Indianapolis.

The efficient organization provided by the student marshals was praised by the police.

PEACE RALLY CROWD, estimated at 1000, gathered at the Federal Building following their peaceful march from Military Park. Speakers at both locations discussed events concerning Kent State killings and Cambodia.

Student Board Funds Thawed

James Herbe, President of Marian's unrecognized Student Board, announced at an informal board meeting last night that he had met yesterday with Dr. Guzzetta, and Board of Trustees members Paul G. Pitz and John J. Dillon. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss lines of communication between the Board of Trustees and Student Body. The non-recognized status of the Board and the validity of Stacy Smith's position as National Student Coordinator also came under discussion at this time.

Smith, who possesses a 2.0 grade average was elected on a write-in vote. The Student Handbook states that a 2.5 cumulative grade point average must be held by all Student Board officer-candidates, and conflict over Smith's election centers around what constitutes a board officer. The board constitution explicitly lists Executive Board officers and does not include the NSA Coordinator among them. The Constitution goes on, however, to list duties of board officers and here includes the duties of the NSA Representative. The Student Board has taken a position that Smith was never a candidate for a Student Board office. The Student Services office holds that Smith is indeed a Board officer and cannot be seated. As a consequence, they have refused to recognize the board and that caused board funds to be frozen in the Business Office.

According to Herbe, Mr. Dillon expressed the opinion that the power to vote and carry out the duties of the board constitutes an officer. However, in order to facilitate communication between the Student Board and the Trustees, he suggested a compromise solution to the problem. This solution consists of a student referendum in which 2/3 of the votes cast would decide the issue. Dillon further stated that, since the Student Board was considering this proposal, he saw no need for board funds to remain frozen.

Following this meeting, the board was permitted to withdraw funds from the business office. At their meeting this evening, the board agreed to accept the referendum. It is not clear at this time, however, whether the referendum would involve student opinion on the positions of Clare Hall president and Sophomore Class president, both of which are also held by non-recognized students.

In further action this week, the board voted to accept James Asher and William Devine as editors of the Fioretti and Thomas Gannon and Lynn Schwartz as editors of the Phoenix. Mr. William Doherty was elected as first choice for Board Faculty Advisor and $1500 was donated by the board to Operation Upbeat.

'Keep Upbeat Alive' is the motto for this week at Marian. Activities are planned in conjunction with a fund-raising program with a goal of $2500 from the Marian community. The total goal for the summer Upbeat program is $15,000.

A well-known program at Marian, Operation Upbeat is designed to aid inner-city high school students in academic, social and cultural development. Marian students serve as volunteer tutors for the program which is headed by John O'Kane, a 1969 graduate of Marian.

Upbeat

The Upbeat Care-a-thon, which was a success last year, will be even bigger and better this year, according to the program committee, whose members are Mike Rizk, Mary Knoll, Sheila Farrell, Stacy Smith, Richard Geaiter and Paul Kazmierzak. The Care-a-thon will begin at 7:30 a.m. Friday and end at 2:00 a.m. Saturday morning; it will be held in the Perc in the SAC building.

Today through Friday students are encouraged to wear 'Keep Upbeat Alive' tags which can be obtained with a donation from any Upbeat volunteer anywhere on campus.

Alive!

On Wednesday afternoon by the lake a car smash will take place. Students can rent three sizes of hammers to demolish the retired Upbeat car, a 1958 Chevy. Also on Wednesday Upbeat volunteers will make beds in Clare Hall for a donation.

Upbeat girls will be on hand in the cafeteria on Thursday night to wait on tables and carry trays for donations.

Friday's Care-a-thon culminates the week's activities with music and a variety of entertainment. Disc jockies Mike Rizk, Stacy Smith and Paul Kazmierzak will provide records and humor during the nineteen-hour program.

Day-Night Field Fun

Wednesday is the day to revive all feelings of class loyalty, troop enthusiastically down to Marian's own lakeside and play to win. Field Day opens at 11:30 with lunch provided by Barry and his crew in the traditional picnic fashion. At 12:30 the intramural awards will be awarded to this season's winning football and basketball teams. Following this the Marian Maid and Knight Awards will be presented to two outstanding seniors for their contribution to Marian.

At 1 p.m. the real fun and action begins with the Egg Toss. Any number of couples may enter, and the winners are determined by the distance they throw their egg without damaging it. Pie Eating is a new contest they will pit four male members of each class against one another in a race to gobble down the last crumb of their one pie. Puff Football will be as interesting as ever with the green freshmen taking on the staunch sophomores and the persevering juniors versus the rough seniors at 2 p.m. The winners of these two games will then play to determine the final victorious team. The Bag Race is the next activity of unlimited participation—just find a partner in your class who travels fast with his legs in a sack. The Mackerel Slap is back due to popular demand—people get excited watching our Marian coeds attacking each other with fish. Women tug-of-war battle and a cross-country race involving both sexes will finish off this day and determine, at least for this year, the class with the soundest mind, body and athletic ability.

Evening activities sponsored by the Social Council include an outdoor movie, 'The Raven,' to be shown at 8:30 on the Library hillside. The 'Cinnamon Empire' will provide the music for a dance by Lake Marian from 9:30 to 11:30 p.m.

Case Pending

The 'Marian Eleven' went to court this morning at nine o'clock to request a trial by jury. The eleven students were arrested last March by Indianapolis Police on charges of loitering and disorderly conduct.

They were demonstrating in front of the hedges of the home of President Dominic Guzzetta. The President's home is located on the college campus. The demonstrations centered around the tenure of Mr. William Pedtke.

The Eleven include Gene Bourke, George Buessem, Michael Consolino, John Costerisan, Edward Geremia, Robert Heitz, John Hellstern, Madeline Rizk, Marty Schepher, Patricia Stark and Sharon Stark.

RABBI SIDNEY STEIMAN, temple Beth-El Zedeck, will discuss Operation Israel at Marian Thursday, at 12:30 p.m. in the Student Activities Center. Rabbi Steiman, a lecturer in sociology, will present pictures and slides of his January, 1970, trip to Israel.

'Life is a Series...'

The problem of interpretation of the Student Board constitution is essential issue in the seating of Stacy Smith as NSA Coordinator. Board of Trustees member John Dillon suggested a referendum be held to resolve the controversy. Last night in an informal meeting the Student Board agreed to accept the referendum.

Basically, the proposed referendum should determine who has the power to interpret the constitution of the Student Association—students or administrators. There is without a doubt some conflict in the constitution in what constitutes an executive officer. These conflicts should be corrected and revised. There is also need however, for someone to have the power of definitive interpretation. In any governmental constitution, questions of interpretation inevitably occur. A poll of the student body is a necessity in determining who students want to interpret a student constitution.

The referendum idea surely has more merit than an earlier administrative-proposed compromise period. The administration suggested the Student Board declare the position of NSA Coordinator vacant and then appoint the 'ineligible' winner to fill the position. This type of compromise would surely be an admission by the Student Board that the Elections were invalid. If this were indeed the case, the body would have to hold new elections for the vacant position.

Validity of elections is not the issue; rather it is the validity of the candidates. It is essential that we decide now who has the power to interpret a student constitution.

L.M.S.

We Hold These Truths...

The incidents of the last week should sicken all Americans. Once again our government reaffirmed that national prestige is more important than human lives, both American and Vietnamese. Exposing to the whole world our perverted values, our leaders have defended to the death their right to kill communists by killing American students. E.E. McLane, President of Trinity College in Elkhart, Indiana best describes the situation.

T.G.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, including, but not limited to Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

To secure these rights governments are instituted, deriving their just power from the consent of the governed. Whenever any government becomes so destructive of these ends it is our right to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government in such form as to seem most likely to effect our safety and happiness.

Prudence dictates that a long established government should not be changed for light or transient causes, so we have been inclined to suffer, while evils were sufferable, than to right ourselves by abolishing a form to which we have long been accustomed.

But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing always the same object, evinces a design to reduce us under absolute despotism, it is our right; it is our duty to throw off such government and to provide new guards for our future security.

Such has been our patient sufferance. Our history shows repeated injuries and usurpations, with the object of establishment of an absolute tyranny of a free people.

We submit these facts to a free world:

Refusal to pass laws for the accommodation of the young, requiring that we relinquish the right of representation in legislatures, a right inestimable to us and formidable to tyrants only.

Established a multitude of new officers to harass us and to eat out our substance.

Levied excessive taxes without our consent, squandered the natural resources of the commonwealth and left us a heritage of debt for ourselves and our posterity for all foreseeable future.

Made justice dependent, not on law but the whim of the judges, the cut of our hair and the clothes we wear.

Established atheism as a state religion in violation of our constitution.

Rendered the military establishment independent of and superior to civil authority.

Conscripted in time of peace, large standing armies for wars waged without the consent of the legislature.

Transported large armies to foreign countries to complete works of death and destruction begun with cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous age and unworthy of a civilized nation.

Conscripted our fellow citizens to bear arms against other countries, to become executioners of friends and brethren, or to fall themselves at their hands.

Plundered on sea, ravaged coasts, burnt out towns and destroyed the lives of free people.

Conspired of us to make merciless savages whose known rule of warfare is an indistinguishable destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

Protected by mock trials punishment for murders committed on the inhabitants of those states.

Subjected us to foreign jurisdiction against our wills and destructive of our civil rights without our consent.

Declared us out of governmental protection in such foreign jurisdictions.

Preached pious platitudes of lofty principles on which this government was established, but violating all those enumerated above, and many others.

At every state of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in humble terms. Our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury.

A government marked by every act which may define a tyrant is unfit to be the ruler of a civilized and free people.

Beating Heads Against Wall?

by John Dorsey

What is the future of mass demonstrations? Can anything be expected to result from them? It appears that at best they widen the gap between those who oppose the war and those who oppose the opposers. At worst they cause needless death and hatred. The students et al. who wish to enact change must stop alienating the very people they are trying to convince. They must somehow incorporate more elements of the society into their movement. To do this they must make the movement more attractive to those people. Oddly enough, it makes no difference whether one wishes just to alter the structure or to completely replace it. Dissenters must either be incorporated or eliminated. President Nixon is faced with this problem at the present moment. It seems a bit incongruous for a peace movement to consider the latter so one is left with incorporation.

Does this mean that one must prostitute himself to the things which he despises? To an extent, yes, but only in process, not in principle. It seems ridiculous for dissenters to beat their heads against a wall until they are bloody, hoping for sympathy, only to have people complain that they are making a mess on the wall. There are more innocuous methods. Inflation offers an excellent opportunity for incorporation. Middle class America is concerned about inflation because it hits close to home. When the housewives of America demonstrate against high beef prices, there is an indication that they may support a boycott of the same. New car sales have dropped drastically this year and students should be out to help this process along. If you offer people something to make them a better person, they will avoid you. If you offer, people something to make them a richer person they will fall over one another trying to reach you.

The various discrepancies and illegalities of the Doyle Hall elections leave some serious doubts as to their validity, particularly in the presidential race. In last week's issue, allegations were made and refuted by the opposing sides. However, there are some pertinent questions which still remain unanswered. More importantly, there are some blatant and irreconcilable facts which render the whole incident impalatable.

The secretary was placed in charge of the election even though it was common knowledge that he was to be a candidate in this election. After this mistake was realized the situation was supposedly remedied by having the president and treasurer count the votes. Unfortunately this is in direct violation of the Doyle Hall constitution which forbids the president from being a member of any committee. Other facts discrediting the election are impossible to ignore. The voting list was not kept properly; there were unauthorized people in the room during the start of the counting. The rumors of ballot box stuffing are not adequately refuted, especially with the immediate disposal of the ballots.

In the interest of good government and fair elections, we recommend that the president, Larry Gagnon, appoint an election committee and hold elections over again.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

As coordinators of the marshals during last Thursday's peace rally in downtown Indianapolis, we feel that we must congratulate the student marshals from Marian on doing a fantastic job. The press reported that the police praised the student marshals for keeping the marchers peaceful and orderly. Bullshit!

The marchers Thursday were as docile a group as any march has ever been. A large percentage were in their first march ever. The marshals didn't have to keep the demonstrators in line, but they did have to keep rednecks and pigs from causing any disturbance — this was their biggest problem. At several points during the rallies and march a number of reactionaries tried to provoke the marchers into action through the use of verbal or physical abuse.

The marshals are to be praised for the restraint with which they handled these problems. It is for this action that we feel the student marshals should be commended; not for keeping peaceful demonstrators peaceful, but for their handling of the provocateurs.

A peaceful demonstration, entirely run by students and demonstrators — could we have expected as much from our elite police force? THINK ABOUT IT!

Robert A. Bittelmeyer
William 'Dinky' Mackey

I would like to thank all those students who got on the 'bandwagon' and helped with the clean-up by the lake. Although there is still much to be done, quite a bit was accomplished as can be seen by the huge piles of trash gathered. All those who worked with us had a good deal of fun while helping to improve the campus. We could never have done as much without your help. Our sincere thanks.

Mood, Media Variety In Meyer-Eha Exhibit

by Carole Williams

The Senior Art Exhibit, on display in the library until May 13, shows a variety of colors, moods and techniques by artists Cathy Meyer and Daniel Eha. As a partial fulfillment for a B.A. in art, they have used a wide range of artistic media: oil, water color, charcoal, pastels, acrylic, batik, enamel and ceramics. Concrete, macaroni shells and foam glass are some of the more unusual media employed. Those interested in purchasing any of the work should contact Cathy and Dan. The exhibit consists of their creations during their four years at Marian.

A native of Covington, Indiana, Cathy prefers working with realistic topics in art. She enjoys using bright colors in working with batik, metal enameling, ceramics, and sculpture. Cathy's career plans include teaching arts and crafts with the Park Department this summer, and she will return to Marian next year to obtain a teaching license in art for high schools.

Dan also prefers realistic topics with oil and sculpture as his favorite media. A resident of Indianapolis, his career plans include a future in commercial art. Dan made an artistic innovation at Marian with his use of concrete in sculpture. His only difficulty was 'filling in the seams and getting the concrete to adhere to the forms I had cast.' He solved the problem with a glue mixture.

One striking aspect of the exhibit is the boldness of colors and range of moods and techniques employed. In an unusual drawing called 'The Spy' Dan creates an ethereal, vapor-like face with moods of blue in vertical lines. The drawing is done in chalk on velour. Dan makes bold contrasts in orange and blue in 'Sunrise' and 'Cactus Plant,' both of which are silk screen. 'Sacrifice' and 'Flower Boy' illustrate his moods of nostalgia and concern with war.

Cathy shows preference for bright colors in 'Fire Works,' an oil painting, and 'Call to Worship,' a woodcut print. She obtains a delicate Japanese effect in 'Thistles,' and an almost embroidery effect in 'Chinese Tea' (continued below)

DIRECTOR JACK O'HARA gives stage advice to Dan Kernan and Lynn Howard on the set of 'Celebration,' the spring musical to be presented in the Marian Hall Auditorium, May 20 and 21, at 8 p.m.

Tutees Tackle Trade Skills

by Lynn Schwartz

The Mental Health Club, always an active group on campus, began a new activity last fall. Four Marian girls, Pat Spista, Marilyn Murphy, Nan Tomson, and Linda Gabonay, now spend their Tuesday afternoons tutoring employees of Goodwill Industries. The tutees are men and women with physical or mental handicaps who simply haven't had the opportunity to learn the skills they need for employment.

According to Pat Spista, volunteer tutor, 'We try to help prepare these people for a trade. We teach the things they want to learn.'

Mrs. Linda Kolb, Director of Student Activities and Women's Affairs, announced the appointment of the Clare Hall Resident Assistantships for the 1970-71 school year. The dorm R.A.'s for next year are:

Joyce Hemmelgarn, Barb Childress, Rebecca Raibley, Joan Bailey and Sandy Goldschmidt.

House Assistants include Mary Bruner, Leacarol Kneeven and Jane Huesman.

The girls were chosen following personal interviews and consultations between Mrs. Kolb, Miss Whitman, present R.A.'s, Clare Hall Board members, and selected residents.

Culture Day Provides Understanding

by Linda Smith

Saturday's Black Culture Day, though sparsely attended, provided much understanding of Black heritage and problems.

The enthusiasm shown by participants compensated for the delayed schedule which characterized the day's events.

Operation Breadbasket was the opening event. Usually held at St. John's Missionary Baptist Church, this function of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference stresses political and economic participation by the Black community in our country's system. The program began with an enthusiastic presentation by St. John's choir. Education, non-violence, and political pursuit were stressed as keys to the Black man's problems. However, it was noted that these channels are difficult to accept, since the Black man wants action now.

The afternoon program included discussions of music, drama, religion, education, art, urban problems and politics. Prominent Black men of the Indianapolis community including Glen Howard, Melvin Ice, and Fr. Boniface Hardin, were discussion leaders.

The education seminar explained hunger and lack of orientation to time and responsibility as obstacles to learning. For instance, the Black slave, in his lack of freedom, was not entrusted with the responsibility necessary in today's educational system. Unifon, non-grading, and individualized scheduling according to ability were suggested corrective methods. Authors such as Martin Deutsch, Herb Koh, Albert Schweitzer, Jonathan Kozol, Nat Hentoff, and Maria Montessori were noted for their education theories. However, it was pointed out that Black authors, not white ones, should be telling Blacks why the 'disadvantaged' cannot learn.

The urban problems discussion mentioned many obscure problems, such as insufficient bus scheduling and garbage pick-up in the inner city. The Model Cities program in Indianapolis combats these problems, and deals with youth, schools, and the involvement of the total community. The specific area assisted is bounded by Meridian, 30th Street, Sherman Drive, and Massachusetts. In that locale 53,000 people are concentrated, and plagued by substandard housing, rats, and unemployment. Volunteer assistance to the Model Cities plan is accepted at any time at 1955 Central Avenue.

The post-dinner event was a Cadet Black History Bowl. In College Bowl style, students from St. Bridget's and Holy Angels' competed on questions about their culture. Realization of their own ignorance of Black people and events astounded the audience as they cheered the eight knowledgeable youngsters.

of the actors were amateurs, their dedication to their message captivated the audience. One scene queried, '...what sorrow will listen to our cries? What ear will hear us without laughing?'

Those who benefited from this day of communication and participation are answers to that question.

News In Brief

Honors Convocation Thursday

Marian's annual Honors Convocation will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Activities Center Auditorium. The purpose of the convocation is to recognize students graduating from the Honors Program, students elected to Honor Societies, and students receiving other honors and distinctions. A reception will follow in the Music Building.

SEAers Grill Out

The Student Education Association is sponsoring its annual year-end activity in honor of the seniors on May 17 at Holiday Park. A lack of finances forces them to change the traditional Breakfast tea to an informal picnic gathering. The time will be 1 to 4 p.m. Interested members may sign up in the Information Office no later than May 13. Come on SEA'ers—let's grill out!

MANASA Member of the Year

Patricia Spista, senior German major, has been named MANASA (Mental Health Club) member of the year. She has been active in all three of the club's projects—Larue Carter, Central State, and Goodwill volunteer programs.

Miss Spista has two tutees. The first is 'Ann,' a 35-year-old Goodwill employee. Her reading level is that of a fourth grader, and she is rather emotionally immature. For example, she cries when she fails to understand simple problems. Miss Spista is helping her learn to add and subtract, make change, and tell time, skills she will need if she is to reach her goal of becoming a waitress.

In speaking of her tutee, Miss Spista remarked, 'Ann needs someone to build up her confidence and show they care. She needs lots of praise.'

'When I first met Ann she wouldn't even look at me. She never even smiled. After almost a month, she gradually began to look at me.'

'Now we laugh and joke around and she calls me by my first name.'

Miss Spista's other tutee is an 18-year-old boy. 'Ray' has polio in his left arm and has difficulty with pronunciation. Miss Spista helps Ray with reading, pronunciation, and phonics.

'Many of these people have never had the opportunity to read. They see a newspaper and think, 'Well, I can't read anyway,' said Miss Spista.

'Ray is now so pleased when I point out that he read a whole story. He goes out so much more a person than when he came in.'

'I've never seen two people more eager to learn than my tutees. They want to make every minute of their hour count. There are so many like that with nobody to teach them. I hope many Marian students volunteer to help them next year. Here at school everyone is so normal and happy. There, if you make someone smile, you feel like you've accomplished something.'

Pot.' Her talent with ceramics is obvious in the very realistically sculpted sea shell and in the uniqueness of the ceramic medallions. Her 'Little Beggar' in block plaster creates a wistful mood.

Both artists have displayed flexibility in the range of materials and effects created in the exhibit, which will continue with works of other seniors this week.

Knights Topple Titans In Double Clash

by William Gillespie

The Marian Knights confronted the Marion Titans Saturday in a baseball battle on the Marian homefront, and the Knights valiantly slew the Titans in a doubleheader, 2-0 and 8-2.

Mike Mills chalked up the win in the opener, but needed relief from Joe Greenwell to preserve the victory. Offensively, the Knights were sparked by Mike Brunette, who slammed a run-scoring, pinch-hit double in the fifth inning. John Jones accounted for the other Marian tally when he singled home Mike Eimer in the sixth.

Losing Titan pitcher Charlie Arrendale displayed his own heroics, however, as he struck out 16 Marian batsmen in his seven-inning performance. Nine of the first ten batters for the Knights trudged dejectedly back to the bench, muttering 'pleasantries' about Charlie's stuff.

In the second-game clash, the Knights unleashed a volley of eleven base hits to provide plenty of support for Mike Brunette's three-hitter. Jim Herbe, Greg Pawlik, and Brunette each had two runs batted in, to pace the Marian attack.

Earlier in the week, the Knights split a twin-bill with Ball State, who had previously beaten Ohio State, the current Big Ten leaders who stand undefeated in Big Ten competition.

Marian nipped Ball State in the first game, 3-2, on Larry Unser's ninth-inning double which snapped a 2-2 deadlock. Joe Greenwell notched his third victory of the season in a two-inning relief stint for Joe Hoog.

The Knights dropped the second encounter 5-3, to halt a four-game winning streak.

Coach John Harkin and his players are waiting eagerly in anticipation of a bid to the National Athletic Intercollegiate Association (NAIA) tournament, which starts on a state level this Friday at Fort Wayne.

Coach Harkin observed, 'Our boys are young and inexperienced, but they're giving it everything they've got. What they need right now is a strong kick that the student body can give them with increased moral support and attendance at the games.'

'If these boys get in the tournament, they have the fight and hustle that can take them a long way, and what they do from here on out will be a reflection of the spirit of the whole school.'

Incidentally, a recent observation is that local sports publications are regularly spelling the oft-misspelled MARIAN, with the Big 'A', and deleting the 'o', as in Marion. Enuff said?

LATE NOTE: The Marian Knights' baseball team split a doubleheader with Franklin yesterday afternoon by twin 3-1 scores. After losing the first game to the Grizzlies, the Knights bounded back to victory in the rain-shortened second contest, spearheaded by the three-hit pitching of Mike Brunette.

The Knights' overall season record now stands at 15-14, including 15 wins in the last 18 outings. They resume action at Butler University in a single game Thursday at 3:16 p.m.

MIKE EIMER, boosting his average once again, leads the Harksmen in batting average.

Coed Participation Seasons Volleyball

by Claudia Zuchowski

On Tuesday and Thursday evenings of the last few weeks of the semester, some of the more daring members of the college community, gather to do battle. They meet to try to defeat an opponent by a combination of skill, determination, and luck. These valiant men and women compete on the volleyball court of glory. (That which transpires on said court is not always glorious, but it is, at least, always enthusiastic.)

Coed volleyball season marks the only time that the men and women of this campus participate together in collegiate sport (in a college sponsored activity, that is). In honor of the occasion, a couple of extra rules are added to the existing body of such. One is that each team consist of three men and three women (hopefully playing against another team rather than against each other). Another added obstacle is that on any single play by a team, the ball must be hit alternately by men and women. This particular feature adds greatly to the confusion and excitement of the game, for a team member may stand by helplessly waiting for someone else to hit the ball, if he (she) cannot do so. Hence, agility and alertness become ever more important qualities for victory.

Thirteen teams are now engaged in competition. The championship game will be played Thursday, May 21 in the Clare Hall gym to finish the season's activities.
